THE REPORT ON FUTURE OF WORK

In this course, you are required to write a report about the future of work for mid-term.

Your report should have at least 3 parts.

1. Part: Current debate on the Future of Work
2. Part: Your Propositions
3. Part: Implementation of your propositions

This is the main framework. In the content you can be as creative as you want. However, you need to provide evidence for your propositions and arguments as well.

In the following there are some questions to think and feel about and use in your report.

- What's the point of work? To get happiness? Make a difference? Recognition? Will the point of work change and how might it do so?
- How do we step away from a 9-5 working week construct together?
- Why are so many organizations already designed and led as though the workers are robots?
- How much longer will income and wage inequality be tolerated by those on the wrong side of the stats? Do you have any solutions for poverty?
- The image of everyone working on the beach is an attractive one – but what does this mean for introverts or people with mobility issues?
- Is happiness a legitimate business and economic outcome?
- Who is accountable for my wellbeing?
- What roles can't be automated? What roles shouldn't be automated?

- What is the best way for groups to create influence and make a difference in a digital age?
- When we do save time where does it go? For all the automation and efficiency, we don't hear many people saying they have more time to relax.
- What are the issues that we are sleepwalking towards now that we will regret not taking action on sooner? (What are the opportunities that we will regret taking?
- How can we help design roles and organizations that make the most of people?
- People frequently talk about wanting more equality and higher living standards for others – yet how many people would give up, for instance, 25% of their salary in order to improve the living standards of others?
- If you had one contribution to make to making things just a little better over the next decade what would it be?
- Scholars describe AI as a potentially extinction level threat why do people think they are overstating it?
- How much of our enhanced technical capability will be channeled into solving societal problems and how much into increasing profits?
- What are the chances the world left by this generation will be better than the one left to us?
